

Who am I?

I am a dreamer—a person who never gives up and dares to do the impossible. I believe that anything is possible, and if I want to achieve something extraordinary, I must be willing to do what has never been done. My story reflects my belief in turning aspirations into reality.

With a suitcase, a rented car, and just $40 for tolls, I moved seven states away from home. This wasn't just a physical journey; it was a leap into the vast domain of possibilities. Wearing my dad's oversized suit, ill-fitting shoes, and a tie four inches too long, I embraced every challenge, transforming each obstacle into a stepping stone toward success.

This initial chapter of my life mirrors the core of who I am. I am someone who sees beyond immediate struggles, focusing on long-term goals. At Carrington Mortgage and NewDay USA, I didn't just rise to the top of my class and earn a managerial role within a year; I embodied resilience and optimism. These experiences, detailed in my attached resume, have shaped my perspective and prepared me to contribute meaningfully to any organization I join.

To me, overcoming challenges is not just a personal value but a way of life. This mindset has guided me through my early career and academic pursuits, including my Master's program in Financial Technology at the University of Connecticut, where I continue to strive for excellence.

I envision bringing my skills, experiences, and forward-thinking mindset to an organization that values innovation, breaking barriers, and fostering a culture of ambition. I aim to contribute not just professionally but with a belief that every challenge is an opportunity to grow and excel.

In applying for this opportunity, I am seeking more than a role—I am seeking a chance to be part of a community that champions the power of possibility. I am eager to bring my unique blend of optimism, resilience, and forward-thinking to your team.

A dreamer,
Nicholas Savignano